FIGURE 2

Department of Justice Components and Grant Information

Department of Justice
Main Grantmaking Components

OJP
Office of Justice Programs

BJA
Bureau of Justice Assistance

Funds law enforcement, courts, corrections, treatment, reentry, justice information sharing, and community-based partners.

Examples
- Byrne JAG
- Adult Treatment Court Program

BJS
Bureau of Justice Statistics

DOJ's primary statistical agency. Collects and publishes criminal justice data.

Focus
- Crime and victimization data
- Justice system statistics

NIJ
National Institute of Justice

DOJ's research, evaluation, and technology agency.

Focus
- Evidence and innovation
- Forensic and school safety research

OJJDP
Office of Juvenile Justice & Delinquency Prevention

Funds efforts to prevent delinquency and improve juvenile justice systems.

Examples
- Title II Formula Grants
- Youth justice and mentoring programs

OVC
Office for Victims of Crime

Funds victim compensation and victim assistance.

Focus
- Victim services
- Support for underserved victims

SMART
Office of Sex Offender Sentencing, Monitoring, Apprehending, Registering, and Tracking

Administers the Sex Offender Registration and Notification Act (SORNA).

Focus
- Registry implementation
- Compliance and notification tools

COPS
Community Oriented Policing Services

Provides funding for community policing nationwide to reduce crime and build trust between law enforcement and communities.

Key Areas
- Law enforcement hiring
- Community policing development
- Active shooter training
- Officer mental health and wellness

OVW
Office on Violence Against Women

Implements the Violence Against Women Act (VAWA) to address domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault, and stalking.

Key Areas
- Law enforcement and prosecution strategies
- Victim services
- Sexual assault services and family support

Types of DOJ Grants

Discretionary Grants
Competitive awards. Solicitations state how many awards DOJ expects to make and the maximum amount.

Example: BJA Adult Treatment Court Program.

Formula Grants
Awarded by formula set in statute or appropriations acts. Recipients still apply and must meet specified requirements.

Examples: Byrne JAG State Formula; OJJDP Title II Formula Grants.

Congressional Earmarks
Congressionally directed spending for named recipients and specific projects, typically advanced through annual appropriations.

Use: One-year projects identified by Congress.

Cooperative Agreements
Usually discretionary awards for a public purpose with substantial federal involvement, often for training or technical assistance.

Examples: LETTAC; National Reentry Resource Center.

Note: Each office administers awards separately, with different requirements, accountability measures, and scope. Many DOJ grants provide three years of funding, and grantees can often reapply if the funding stream continues.
Accurate as of October 2026